

URGES NEED OF DOCTORS FOR NEW AMERICAN ARMY

Correspondence of the Associated Press.
LONDON, May 28.—An urgent plea for an adequate supply of doctors for the new American army was made by Sir Alfred Keogh, surgeon general of the British army, in an interview, in which he discussed the important part played by the medical profession in the composition of the gigantic military forces of today. As the man who organized the medical service for the British army of five million soldiers, Sir Alfred is qualified to speak as an expert. Incidentally he also showed by turning to a base hall for his analogies that he understands the great American game.

"The new American army," he said, "should take the field as thoroughly prepared as a first-class base ball team. To do this it must have sufficient doctors to keep the men in condition. A good ball team always carries a physician along with it. Therefore if you want to know the most vital need of a modern army I tell you it is doctors, doctors, doctors."

Sir Alfred stopped in the middle of a letter he was writing to Surgeon General Gorgas of the United States Army to be interviewed. He was writing to the man of Panama canal fame regarding the medical units which are being dispatched from America to the western battle front. It was but additional evidence of the close co-operation that has been kept up for many months between the medical branches of the British and American armies.

"There is no better medical corps in the world than that of the United States," Gen. Keogh added, "and you may be sure that the authorities are fully alive to the need for expansion to keep pace with the growing army. But it is hard to make the layman understand this. He usually takes into account only the strictly military aspect of the soldier, such as his training and equipment. He does not realize that to make the soldier prepared in the strict sense of the word the medical and supply departments must not be overlooked."

JOHN E. S. HOOVER DIES IN SEVENTY-EIGHTH YEAR

Suffered Apoplectic Stroke About Two Weeks Ago—For Many Years Business Man.

John E. S. Hoover, who resided at 1328 Calvert street northwest, died at an early hour today from an attack of apoplexy which he suffered nearly two weeks ago. Mr. Hoover was in his seventy-eighth year and had enjoyed excellent health up to the time he was stricken. During the civil war and for many years thereafter he was engaged in the shoe business on Pennsylvania avenue between 9th and 10th streets.

He was a son of Michael Hoover and of Mary Tweedy Hoover, having been born in 1839, at 7th and O streets, now occupied by the O Street market, but then owned by his father. His father, Michael Hoover, and his uncle, John Hoover, were in the civil war for many years afterward, the largest merchant of the city.

Michael Hoover was born here in 1800 and his parents also were born here, thus carrying the settlement of the family here back to period antedating the revolutionary war.

Family Among Earliest Residents.
The family, therefore, was one of the first to settle in what was destined to become the national seat of government. Mr. Hoover's cousin, Jonah D. Hoover, was United States marshal of the District of Columbia during the administrations of Pierce and Buchanan.

Mr. Hoover's wife was Miss Jennie Louise Gautier, who did not quite three years ago. Her father was a native of France, having come to this country and settled in Washington in 1837. He was established in the confectionery business where The Star building now stands.

Mr. Hoover is survived by eight children, Walter Le May, George P., John E., Charles J., Frank H., William H., Louise and Alice Hoover. Three of his sons are actively identified with the legal profession and the other three are engaged in business in this city.

Justice Gould, sitting in Criminal Division No. 1 of the District Supreme Court, today continued the case of Norman E. Standford, charged with open mail packages, to allow the defendant to spend the summer as a farm hand in Maryland. He is from the Harford county, Md., where the defendant had been working there while out on bail, and his absence before the harvest would work a hardship on the farmers. When arraigned May 4 Standford pleaded guilty. Today his case was continued indefinitely.

Unanswerably Logical

Anyone will admit that a Foot Remedy should be used directly upon the feet, and at the time when the feet are in use. There is only one form of Foot Remedy that can be applied in this manner—a Foot Powder.

The placing of a Foot Powder in the shoes, where but a small fraction of it can work its way through to the foot, converts the scientifically medicated foot powder, into a common shoe powder, which is used solely to make the shoe slip on easily. The use of a remedy at night upon the feet no longer encased in shoes, is "locking the stable door after the horse is stolen." If you want real Foot Comfort use on the feet, DIRECT, WHILE they are in use.

Fastest Foot Powder is highly medicated, harmless, antiseptic and an effective Deodorant for all parts of the body. Apply Fastest in the morning and it guards your feet all day.

Shake on the feet and rub in well. Sold in convenient Sprinkler top cans, 25c. All druggists.
